

Sims For State Secretary

Demo Trades Involve Lesser Offices

Democratic rumblings foreshadowing the hurling of many gages of battle into the lists, at some unfixed time this fall, indicate the wider spread of political planning, so that now, some idea may be gained of the sentiment of the leadership toward other offices than that of governor.

While it is well recognized that the governorship is going to be the center of the pre-primary storms, there is not a little interest in the tradings and swappings for lesser jobs. For instance:

Mitt Sims, limited by law to one term as state treasurer is practically conceded the right to carry the party's banner as candidate for secretary of state. This is exactly as it should be from a democratic standpoint, for Mr. Sims is from Graham county, and Graham county is a demo stronghold that the leaders believe it will be well to keep consolidated.

For Sims' present position, wise ones are mentioning Jesse Boyce, secretary to the state tax commission. Here, again, the geographical location of Mr. Boyce's unofficial headquarters favors the selection. Not since there was a state of Arizona, has Coconino county had a man on a state ticket. And Boyce, hailing from Flagstaff, Williams and other nearby main-line points, is regarded as an ideal man for the candidacy; his position in the party and his work in state officialdom are said to have fitted him for the promotion.

Both state treasurers heretofore, have been from the south of the state.

One of them, D. F. Johnson, contemplates running again, as he has been "out" for one term.

All this leaves it all the more apparent that Sid Osborn, present secretary of state, will be regarded as a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination.

The recent support of certain of the democratic press of the state given unasked to J. C. Callaghan, has irretrievably hurt his chances of contesting the nomination, according to some very frank democratic leaders. On the other hand, the auditor is credited with a statement in which he denies without reservation, his ambition to supplant Hunt.

It being practically certain that Wiley Jones will enjoy the squabble over the nomination for governor, the office of attorney general is left open to other applicants. Nor is there a dearth of well discussed material. Among the first to be mentioned, is Leslie T. Hardy, present assistant, and the unsuccessful candidate in his party last election.

A. R. Lynch, losing candidate for the speakership in the first state house of representatives, is expected to emerge from the solitudes of Clifton, and bid for the nomination. The fact he will be representing the faithfully democratic county of Greenlee, will add to the favor with which the party leaders will regard him. H. H. Linney of Prescott, speaker of the house in the special session of the first legislature, is another man whose name will probably be advanced by his friends.

UNIVERSITY OPENS WITH THE BIGGEST REGISTER IN ANNUALS

President von KleinSmid Addresses Student Body, Suggesting Weekly Letters Home and Close Application to Their Work

TUCSON, Sept. 23.—With a total registration of 282 at the University of Arizona, this institution has begun its twenty-sixth year with the largest attendance ever recorded. This morning Dr. von KleinSmid, in a stirring address to the entire student body, outlined the policies of the coming year, and introduced the new members of the faculty, who were greeted enthusiastically by the students. On the platform with President von KleinSmid, were Dean A. E. Douglass, of the College of Arts, Sciences and Letters; Dean G. M. Butler of the College of Mines, and Acting Dean Geo. F. Freeman, of the College of Agriculture.

President von KleinSmid complimented the student body on the fine spirit shown since his assumption to the presidency a little over one year ago, and the hearty support accorded his policies by the students and faculties alike. He emphasized particularly the immense value accruing to the university from having such an associated with it as Professor Byron Cummings, who is to teach archaeology, Dr. Sweeney Frank, in the literature and law department; Dr. H. H. Foster, of the education and psychology department and Dr. H. M. Leonard, mathematics.

The new courses in law, music, art and psychology are showing a most encouraging registration, each of these courses being taught by specialists in those particular lines.

President von KleinSmid spoke feelingly of the home ties broken by the students in coming to Tucson and made a strong appeal to them to maintain their high ideals and principles throughout their college life. "I ask of you, as man to man," said Dr. von KleinSmid, "as one who understands something of what is going on in the home circle while you are absent, the anxiety, the loneliness, the tediousness, do not let the Sunday afternoon go by when you do not send that letter home. If you forget anything else, do not forget that. It is not fair to ignore those who have the first and greatest claim on us. I should rather see a man sacrifice his career than to break the heart of his father or his mother."

President von KleinSmid announced that a fund had been provided for the presentation of concerts and lecture courses, and that during the year such entertainment and instruction would be provided at a nominal cost, if not entirely free. He particularly urged the students to husband their mental, financial and physical resources, and to cultivate those habits most conducive to happiness and prosperity.

He was heartily applauded for the sentiments expressed, and his pleasing and inspiring personality and broad-mindedness is being felt throughout the entire institution, all departments of which are enthusiastically entering into their work.

DELEGATES NAMED

Delegates were named yesterday by the directors of the chamber of commerce to the Arizona Good Roads association, scheduled to be held at Flagstaff on October 9. All the delegates are certain they will be able to make the trip, and most of them, together with officials of the organization, residing here, will make the trip in automobiles.

The delegates so far selected are: J.

COMMITTEES ON THE FAIR

The Chamber of Commerce Names Big General Committee With Sub-Committees to Work With State Fair Management

Chamber of commerce committees to work in cooperation with the state fair management, were made at a meeting of the directors yesterday. A general committee was first selected, and then some of the members were assigned to certain departments of the fair, with which they have become more or less familiar through work in the past.

The committee, with its subdivisions is as follows:

Finance—Harry M. Fennimore, Charles A. Stauffer and Gus Noll.

Entertainment—H. R. Tritle, Power Conway.

Hotel Accommodations—J. C. Adams, Arthur Lurbs, John D. Loper and A. L. Williams.

Auto Race—George Purdy Bullard and Warren McArthur.

Harness Races—C. R. Wood and Shirley Christy.

The hotel committee will work in conjunction with Secretary Tom Shaugnessy to even up the supply and demand for accommodations, and to insure fair rates.

FAMOUS LECTURER COMING TO PHOENIX

Mr. E. D. Sexton, of Los Angeles, who is to lecture at the Arizona School of Music on Sunday evening, is a lecturer of note. He has delivered his lecture, "Where Are the Dead?" in all the larger cities of the United States and Canada, also Great Britain. He is an interesting speaker and some of his statements are startling in their truth and force. Nevertheless he sticks closely to the

E. D. SEXTON

Bible and shows how that wonderful book has been so little understood and God's name dishonored by many doctrines of the Dark Ages.

Mr. Sexton is a philanthropist of the highest order. He receives absolutely no remuneration for his services. No admission is charged to his lectures and no collection taken. All thinking persons, Christian or non-Christian, are cordially invited.

C. Adams, George Hazeman, Ernest W. Bennett and E. Power Conway. Others will be named later.

OIL SEARCH IS RESUMED

Verde Valley Oil Company Prepares to Go Down to 3000-Foot Level—Big Artesian Well Brought in—First Apples Shipped

CLARKDALE, Sept. 23.—After a period of inactivity lasting over a year the Verde Valley Oil company has resumed drilling in its well below Camp Verde. When work was discontinued the hole was down 1700 feet and it is now the purpose of the company to go on down to 3000 feet. A large block of stock has recently been sold which it is understood will make drilling to such a depth possible. Five hundred feet of this well was drilled through a deposit of solid salt.

Oil experts who have looked the Verde Valley field over have all said that oil in paying quantities would not be encountered above a 2000 foot level. Four or five other companies have drilled wells in the valley but none have reached the required depth. A strange commentary upon the situation is the fact that just at a time when this company is resuming operation the other companies are in the act of shipping their rigs to Texas fields.

Artesian Water Hage & Erickson, water well drillers, have just brought in a fine artesian well for Henry Shuerman near Cottonwood. This is the best well yet attained in the artesian belt. Other wells are contracted for and will be put down as fast as the drillers can sink them.

Car of Apples The first car load of apples shipped out of the valley this season was shipped by John Hurst of Oak Creek and consigned to himself at Flagstaff. Others cars are being loaded for shipment to various points.

CONFERENCE ON WATER POWER COMES TO CLOSE

Declares for State Control as Against Federal Public Domain

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH] PORTLAND, Sept. 23.—The Western States power conference adjourned after adopting the report of the resolutions committee declaring for state control against a federal public domain and calling upon congress to pass a declaratory act recognizing and endorsing the claims of states set forth in the resolutions. This was a decisive victory for advocates of states' rights.

The same majority previously rejected the minority report whose chief spokesman was Senator Thomas Walsh of Montana. The report purposes to place the conference on record as favoring federal control of public domain. Walsh's speech in support of the minority report brought forth impassioned replies from Senator Clark, Senator Smoot, Clyde Dawson and W. Lair Thompson. George Lyon of Nebraska, made remarks about Senator Norris, which Senator Clark asked him to consent to have expunged from the records. The situation was dramatic when Dawson walked down the aisle, to within a few feet of Walsh. Shaking his fist at the senator, he said:

"It ill becomes the representative from Montana to throw rocks at Colorado when the same causes brought trouble in both states."

Clark predicted a bill embodying the principles of the Norris bill will be passed by the next congress.

HEALEY GUILTY

with Healy that May day when she told him she recognized him as Healy and not Fred W. Moore, the name signed to the document.

The trial brought out the fact that the defendant failing to represent himself as some one else with Miss Powers then sought Z. G. Page, a notary, who executed the instrument. Jim Murphy, deputy sheriff, and Fred W. Moore were also witnesses for the state and J. W. Weatherford and E. C. Craft for Healy, who took the stand in his own behalf.

Assistant district attorney Leon S. Jacobs presented the opening argument, concisely reviewing the case. "Either Miss Powers or Healy is guilty of perjury," he contended, arguing that belief in her statement meant conviction for Healy.

F. C. Struckmeyer and Benton Dick were eloquent in behalf of their client basing their argument on the fact that they declared Page had not identified the man in jail as he for whom he had acknowledged the deed. District Attorney Clyde M. Gandy concluded the state's argument accentuating the points brought out by him in clever cross examination.

Healy is well known in Phoenix having lived here for several years. He has been connected with many and various business enterprises, his most recent efforts being along the lines of fire insurance. He at one time served as a deputy in the office of county recorder.

AT THE POOL

"Isn't that a beautiful picture! Psyche at nature's mirror: a young girl gazing at her reflection in the pellucid pool!"

"Bah! I don't care for that kind of stuff."

"I suppose not. If you gazed into the water you'd see an old crab."
